This is just great! First you give microsoft a free ride in their antitrust suit. Now you are going to allow them to make inroads in the educational front and create a new monopoly in the schools. Come on get a life. This is just as bad as the government giving away the U. S. treasury to faceless, unaccountable corporations to ship out of the country and call it helping the economy. They need to give it in some way to people that will spend it. Make Microsoft give the equivalent in cash and let the school systems buy what they need.
